

Barry C. Binder is an MA student in the Department of History at the University of Colorado-Colorado Springs. His area of concentration is modern U.S. and the American West, with thematic focuses on migration, labor, cultural, and social history. His current research centers on the transmission and evolution of ideas and identity through migration in the Pikes Peak region. He earned his BA in History from Illinois State University ('96), with a focus on regional, immigrant, and cultural history. In addition to academic pursuits, Barry is active in public history and historic preservation, serving as a Commissioner on the Historic Preservation Board of Colorado Springs and as a member of the Historic Preservation Alliance of Colorado Springs.